

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Daniel Peter Layard M. D. & F. R. S. to the President, concerning the same.

Read March 8.
 1749-50.

Notwithstanding you will receive various Accounts, and many much better than I am able to send you, of the Earthquake felt this Morning, yet I with due Deference take the Liberty of laying before you the Particulars I observed, and such as are come to my Knowledge.

At 40 Minutes past 5 this Morning, as I lay awake in a two Pair of Stairs Room, I heard a Noise, first as if the Top of the House was cracking, and then as if it fell in. Instantaneously the House shook with great Violence, rocking to and fro from N. E. to S. W. so as to make all the Furniture rattle, the Windows and Bells ring. It also waked all the Family, but the Servants in the Garrets felt the greater Shock.

It is reported, that two small Shocks preceded this, one at 12 o' Clock last Night, the other at 2 this Morning; but I cannot say I felt either.

The Milk-People in the Fields were very sensible of this Earthquake, and say, that it began by a Report like that of a Cannon fired near at hand. Those who were milking in a Barn thought it was coming down; but were not so sensible of the Earth's Motion as those milking in the Fields, who could scarcely stand. The Cows were also frighten'd, and ran away from the People.

This Earthquake was universally felt at Hampstead, and much stronger than that on the 8th of February.

I crave,

I crave, Sir, your Indulgence on this imperfect Account, and am, with all possible Respect,

S I R,

Dean-street Soho, March 8.

1749-50.

Your most humble, and most obedient Servant,

Daniel Peter Layard.

XV.

The Reverend Mr. Roger Pickering, F. R. S. to the President, concerning the same.

Aldermanbury, March 8. 1749-50.

S I R,

*Read March 8.
1749-50.*

THE Earthquake this Morning, which happen'd at so early an Hour as to surprize most People in their Sleep, I had all the Opportunities imaginable of observing to as much Exactness as Phænomena of this Nature can be; and therefore do myself the Honour to present you with this early Intelligence.

About a Quarter after 5 I was lying in Bed awake, and under the Composure which one generally feels upon recovering from a regular and refreshing Sleep. To this the Serenity of the Morning greatly contributed, as well as the gradual Increase of Light, which, the Shutters being open, could easily be perceived thro' the linen Furniture of the Bed and Window-